SOURCES OF KAPPA SIGMA HISTORY

The object of this publication is to give a list of citations to material for all the paragraphs or topics which should be set out in writing a history of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity from its foundation in America in December, 1869, to the establishment of the Fraternity's magazine in October, 1885, when the printed history of the Fraternity begins.

It also directs a seeker for information to an authoritative account of any event of the Fraternity's American history up to October, 1885.

Citations are to the Kappa Sigma Quarterly (magazine), The Caduceus of Kappa Sigma (magazine), The Star and Crescent of Kappa Sigma (periodical), the first and second editions of the Kappa Sigma Book, Early Letters and Papers of Kappa Sigma, Kappa Sigma Records. The first edition of the Kappa Sigma Book, Early Letters and Papers of Kappa Sigma and the Kappa Sigma Records, the last being four volumes in MSS., are compilations of Boutwell Dunlap. The second edition of the Kappa Sigma Book was compiled by Finis King Farr.

In order to preserve for historical record the origin of statements, it is mentioned that the compiler, Boutwell Dunlap, is the author or collector of all citations that are not followed by a star (*). The authorship of other citations is sometimes stated in the article cited.

During twenty years the compiler, Boutwell Dunlap, has published in The Caduceus biographies of and biographical notes on, it is estimated, at least 4,000 of the initiates of the Fraternity—especially, those of the first part of its history. Among the latter are biographies of members not particularly mentioned in the above syllabus of the period, 1869-1885, as connected with its strictly "historical" events, as well as those of the same period connected with such events.

References in the foregoing citations to the biographies of either of these last two classes would obscure the continuity and confuse the reader of the historical narrative. They are more properly to be used as material for a Fraternity catalogue or biographical collection. Besides, biographies become obsolete with new facts in careers. Therefore, except in the case of the Founders at Virginia, or where some biography contains a historical statement, they have been omitted in the references.

It is believed that no other fraternity has in its possession so many photographs of its early historical members as those listed above. Some alumni, whose likenesses are missing, have pleaded, through modesty, that their publication by Kappa Sigma be omitted. In addition to these, the Fraternity has printed photographs of a number of its collegians of this period who became distinguished, but are not cited.

While interjection of biographies of these is not pertinent to a history, still, if a history of the Fraternity be published, an attractive addition to the volume would be the interspersion through the text for 1869-1885 of photographs of the following initiates of those years. They—like a number of those with references in the foregoing—have become distinguished men in either their states or the nation:

George Tully Vaughan—Caduceus, XI, 198*, XXXII, 12*; Lee Brock—Caduceus, XXIII, 3*; Samuel Macon Smith—Caduceus, XXIV, 249, op. 299; Samuel Cecil Graham—Caduceus, XXVI, 319; John Dudley Pope—Caduceus, XXVI, 319; Stephen Olin Richey—Caduceus, XXVI, 320; Thomas Neal Ivey—Caduceus, XXVI, 320; William Thomas Jenkins—Caduceus, XXVI, 373, XXXV, op. 1*, XXXV, 9; John Bell Turner—Caduceus, XXVI, 712*; Francis Irvin Osborne—Caduceus, XXVI, 945; William Reynolds Allen—Caduceus, XXVII, 92*; Joseph Luther Kelly—Caduceus, XXIX, 390*; Francis Nelson Barksdale—Caduceus, XXXI, 500*; Henry Davidson Fry—Caduceus, XXXII, 12*; DeWitt Coffman—Caduceus, XXXII, 14*, XXXIV, 374*; Robert Henry Watkins—Caduceus, XXXIV, 630*.

The ana of the Fraternity contains a large number of photographs of the buildings and campus scenes of the various colleges and universities where Kappa Sigma Chapters were established, 1869-85. These, if it be desired, might be used to illustrate a historical narrative of these years.
